

Liftid Personal Brain Stimulator

Testimonial

"In late October, 2019, we faced a huge challenge. How could we reach consumers around the world, in a short amount of time, with a professional and state-of-the-art online marketing strategy that would resonate with consumers and bring our exciting new brand to the masses? Well, after an ad agency colleague led us to The Gadget Flow, the impossible became possible. Their VP of Sales, got the ball rolling with a thorough explanation of the Gadget Flow platform and how they would get Liftid in front of millions of consumers over the next 60 days.

Here is our takeaway working with Gadget Flow. The promotion brought thousands of new visitors to the Liftid website and sales of Liftid tripled in the first 10 days of the program.

Our product retails for $149 and we received orders and notoriety from all over the world, including one customer who purchased 20 units as Christmas gifts. Inquiries from scientists in the tech field and new business opportunities came flowing in and we attribute the sudden fast growth of our brand to Gadget Flow.

Over my 35 year career, when you design and develop a product, incorporate an emerging technology, and produce and package this product for consumers, it is extremely personal. You want appreciation, recognition, validation and a chance to make that product dream a reality. Gadget Flow is all about teamwork, strategy, and a seamless partner experience. Their interactive dashboard is easy to navigate and gives you visitor and promotional data in real time. With thousands of products on the Gadget Flow site including Apple, Google, Canon and HP , it always seemed like our Liftid Neurostimulation device was near the top.

I highly recommend anyone in the tech field with a new and exciting product to use Gadget Flow to introduce their product to the world. I can't say enough about the wonderful team and marketing platform that Evan has put together and how much I enjoyed working with Gadget Flow."
